

A cartoon illustration of a female teacher with red hair, large eyes, and rosy cheeks, smiling. She is wearing a blue top and is positioned behind a blue banner.

10 Reasons I Want To Teach

A cartoon illustration of the teacher character sitting at a brown desk, writing on a piece of paper with a yellow pencil. A red apple is on the desk to the right.

By: Lauren Schneider

1. I Love Kids!

- I love working with children, and watching them learn new information.
- In my experience kids register information in the most basic way, and ask questions that most adults are wondering themselves.
- I enjoy watching kids grow with knowledge, and become more equipped for the world, and their future.

#2 Empowerment

- By building more self esteem, and readiness for the future, an education is in order.
- I would make sure my students know that furthering their education would help better their lives.
- Believing in my students will help give them a positive attitude on their education. They will be excited to learn, and feel great about themselves as they succeed, and look forward to their schoolwork.

3. Mr. Pownell

- Our past teachers often inspire people to pursue a career in education.
- In elementary school I was a failing student. I never tried my hardest, and none of my teachers encouraged me to do better.
- Mr. Pownell took me aside, and told me I could accomplish anything, and that I was intelligent and able to succeed in life.

4. Our Future

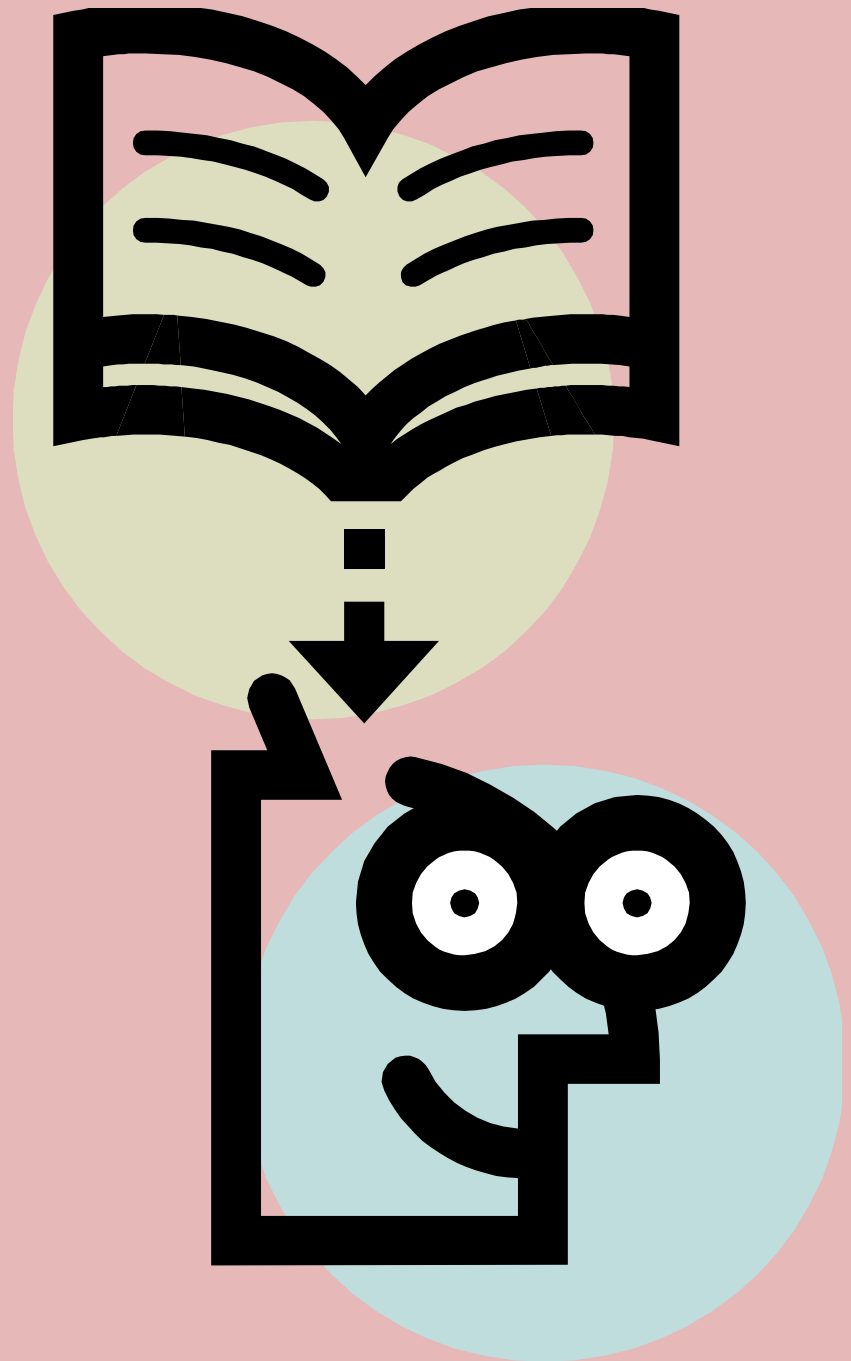

5. Giving Back

- The idea of teaching is special to me, because I feel it is not only rewarding but a way of giving back to the community.

6. Research

Not only do the students have new material to learn, but also the teachers. Being a teacher means having the ability to learn new information everyday.

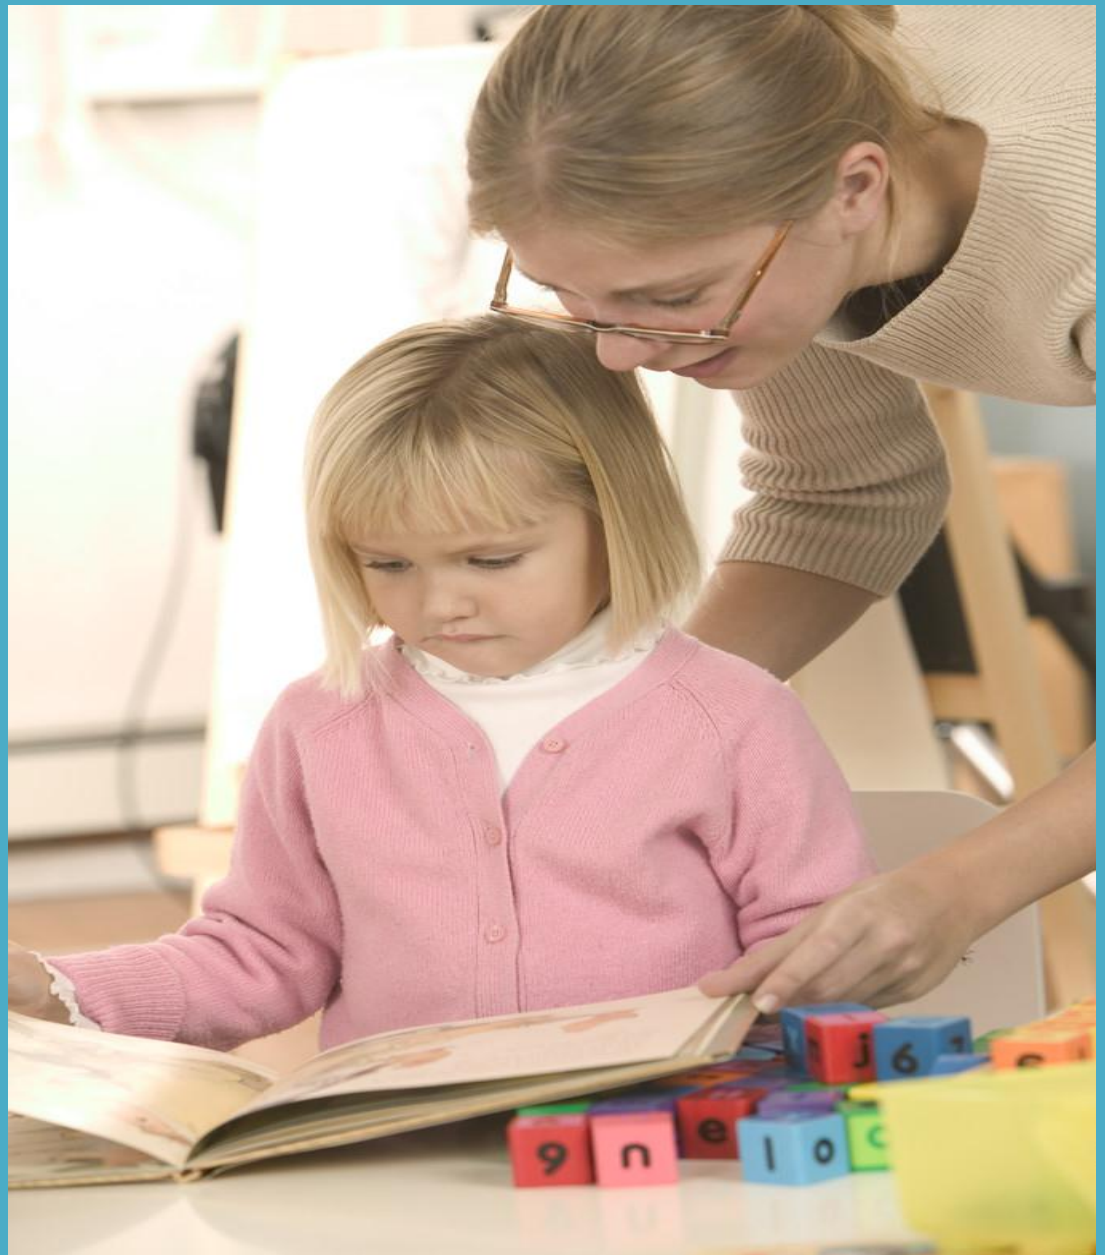

7. Change and Reflection

- As a teacher I will need to be able to make modifications to my methods and constantly change my techniques. It is important to reflect on my work and focus on what I need to improve to better every child's education.

8. PASSION!!

9.
The students I will teach that will change my life!

10. Remembering to love the small things again.

The students will help keep me grounded and more appreciative of the things I have.

10 Reasons I Want To Teach

The End!

By: Lauren Schneider